Nexia BT advisory consultant, Anita is a corporate finance and restructuring specialist. Starting her career in auditing in a Big Four firm 20 years ago, she has, along the years, managed a number of corporate restructuring projects for both the public and private sectors. Anita possesses considerable experience in funding, finance and administration of EU projects and public procurement of a large scale organisations. As a former director of finance for the University of Malta for three years she managed a funding portfolio of €55 million and has direct experience in the tertiary education sector. She has also had a stint in the health sector where she held the position of Financial Controller of a private hospital. For a number of years, Anita specialised in building cost models for the communications industry. Her work was instrumental in harmonising interconnection rates in Malta with those of the EU. In 2005, she led the project of building a Next Generation Network (NGN) bottom up cost model – a first in Europe. Within the advisory services arm Anita assists a wide range of clients in setting up corporate governance structures and in dealing with risk management issues; developing business plans and providing advice and assistance during mergers and acquisitions. In 2014, Anita won the prestigious MSV Life Top Entrepreneur of the Year Award and was also declared Corporate Financier of the Year Award. Perhaps her biggest achievement to date, rests with the award to Nexia BT of the International Advisory firm of the Year title in the single firm category by the International Accounting Bulletin (IAB) for 2015, the first time such an award was bestowed on a Maltese organisation. Anita is a fellow of the Malta Institute of Accountants and holds an executive masters, degree in business administration from the ENPC in Paris and the University of Edinburgh Business School. She also lectures at the University of Malta. As a founding member of Women Directors in Malta, a non-profit organisation set up in 2015, Anita plays an active role in encouraging women to hold positions on boards.
